LIGHT ON THE BIBLE.

REWARDS OF EXPLORERS AND EXCAVATORS.

Valuable Testimony to the Truth of Scripture from Babylon and Assyria.

[Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.] A few years ago I wrote for the columns of the DISPATCH an account of the remarkable discoveries in Assyria and Babylon, and now I shall continue the series of articles which was then begun.

During the last four years explorers and excavators have been busy, and their search has been bountifully rewarded. New cities have been unearthed and hundreds of inscribed tablets, seals, and cylinders have been found, and as their strange-looking signs are translated they tell a story that is truly wonderful. In fact, the entire acare translated they tell a story that is truly wonderful. In fact, the entire account of Assyrian and Babylonian discovery is one of the most charming romances of modern literature. It is thought strange indeed that these two nations, who occupied the birthland of Abraham (Chaidea) and who, represented and finally engaged the expectation of the control of the cont true.

GRAVE-YARD OF EMPIRES.

To those unfamiliar with the recent eastern discoveries, let it be said, that during the present century the land lying between the Tigris and the Euphrates has proven to be the grave-yard of two mighty empires-viz., the Assyrian and the Babylonian. The former ended with the fall of its capital, Nineveh, in 606 B. C.; the latter with the destruction of Babylon in 508 B. C. The two kingdoms were thought to have been blotted from the face of the earth, but during recent years they have burst their prison-doors and come forth to tell their own story. Hundreds of cities have been unearthed with their ornamented buildings, monuments and tablets, and the inscriptions upon them have been translated.

Many cities yet lie almost untouched, waiting for the spade of the excavator, and the work of exploration is now in its infancy. Every day some new disclosure is made and scholars are kept on tiptoe of expectation.

The chief point of interest about these discoveries is the light which they cast upon Old-Testament history and this paper will mention several Scripture passages which have thus been illumined and confirmed.

UR OF THE CHALDERS. The Bible student remembers that the

was as follows: For many years the at-tention of travellers has been attracted to mounds of ruins on the west side of the Euphrates, but not until recently has any explorer boldly struck his spade deep into these curious hillocks and uncarthed their long-buried secrets. From these resurrected remains comes the information that they mark the birth-place of the old petriareb. This city where Abraham spent his youthful days is revealed as enclosed in walls of oval shape and filled with a large population. In Abraham's day it was a great commercial centre and the capital of the mighty Chaldean empire. Ideiatry of the vilest kind, attended by all forms of magic and witchcraft, reigned supreme, and in such poisonous atmosphere the future friend of God, the father of the Hebrew nation, received his boyish impressions and grew up to youth and manhood. At the ruins of Urabout one hundred business tablets have been unearthed, and their description of the commercial life of the city explains the remarkable business talent displayed by Abraham in his later life. The Bible represents him as very wealthy in cattle and gold, and his to mounds of ruins on the west side of the Euphrates, but not until recently displayed by Abraham in his later life.

The Bible represents him as very wealthy in cattle and gold, and his transaction with Ephron, the Hittie, at Hebron (by which he secured the cave of Macpeiab) shows his skill in the arts of Macpeiab) shows his skill in the arts of trade. (Think of reading to day beginning to day beginnin Macpeiah) shows his skill in the arts of trade. Think of reading to day business communications written in the very time, and some of which possibly fell sheep without number. The strange absence of this name in history caused many critics to discredit the Scripture record and to discredit the Scripture record and to affirm that no such person as Sargon ever ruled over Assyria. Kings xviii. reads: Greek or Latin historians would contain "And Hezekiah, King of Judah, sent to his name." Such was their defiant claim, the King of Assyria to Lachish, saying, and friends of the Bible had no opposing I have offended, "etc. Strangely enough, testimony to offer.

But within recent years a strange thing has happened. A French archieologist, M. Botta by name, while excavating one day at Koyunjik, the site of ancient Nineveh, heard something which kindled his curiosity and caused him to strike his spade into a new spot of earth. A visitor to his camp told him of some peculiar-looking mounds at the village of Khors abad, and thither M. Botta sent a force of excavators. So successful was their search that M. Botta transferred his entire force to the place and went eagerly to work. One day a spade ouched a stone, which soon proved to be a part of a wall. This was found to be a part of a building, and in a short while M. Botta was walking in an immense subterranean palace, which exhibited a rate and splendid type of architecture and ornamentation and covered the vast area of twenty-five acres. But his greatest surprise was still lying in lurk for him. On examining the inscriptions on the walls he learned that he was within the palace of Sargon, King of Assyria. Let the reader imagine what must have been Botta's emoons as this wonderful confirmation of Holy Writ burst upon his astonished

Now what testimony has Sargon to offer concerning this dependence? His inscription reads: "The people and their evil chiefs carried their presents unto Pharaob, King of Egypt, and besought his alliance to fight against me." The cause for the invasion was as folarch and try the friendship of the royal ruler of Egypt. In this revolt Herekiah was joined by many other cities who also were bound by treaty to Assyria. There was one subject King, however, who valued loyalty higher than freedom. His name was Padi and his city was Ekron. Such a conscientious disturber of the revolt was placed in chains by his own people and sent to in chains by his own people and sent to Hezekiah at Jerusalem. When Sen-nacherib heard of this widespread re-bellion his eyes gleamed with warlike fire; he prepared for a campaign of re-The Bible student remembers that the city where Abraham was born and spent this boyhood days, and from which he was lured by the Divine promise, was "Ur of the Chaldees." Other tablets discovered at Ur tell of how the land around the city was irripated by canals and protected by dykes.

The very name "Abram" has been found among the inscriptions as the name of a court officer of a king who ruled over this territory several centure.

a large stone slab has been excavated and is now in the British Museum which confirms this Scripture statement. It is engraved with an elaborate pictorial representation, in which Sennacherib is seated on his throne in front of Lachish while he receives the spoils of the city as it passed before him. Above the sculptured picture is an inscription which reads: "Sennacherib, King of Nations, King of Assyria, sitting on his throne, causes the spoils of the city of Lachish to pass before him." It was here at Lachish that Hezekiah sent his presents. Verse 21 reads: "Thou trusted upon the staff of this bruised reed, even upon Egypt." This charge addressed to Hezekiah by the Assyrian messenger refers to the assistance of Egypt that Hezekiah had sought, Now pendence on Egyptian aid is also mentioned by Sennacherib in two or three places. In his inscription he says: The King of Egypt, the bowmen, the chariots, and the horses of the King of Ethiopia had gathered together innu-merable forces and gone to their assistance." DESTRUCTION OF THE ASSYRIAN ARMY. In a second campaign occurred the attack upon Jerusalem, in which the army of Sennacherib was miraculously destroyed in one night under the walls of the city. The truth of the Bible statement about this sudden calamity is verified by the absence of any reference in the Assyrian inscriptions to the end-ing of the campaign. Assyrian kings in their royal records are very com-municative about their victories, but they pictures and also recounting other events of Sargon's career. The inscriptions disclose the fact that Sargon's reign lasted fifteen years and marked one of the most splendid periods of Assyrian history.

ATTACK ON ASHDOD,

But not only is the real existence of Sargon confirmed, but the very attack against Ashdod, which is mentioned in the passage of Isaiah quoted above is

The remarkable destruction of the of Scripture, reads: "In my ninth expedition to the land beside the great sea (Mediterranean), I went to Philistia and Ashdod. Azuri, King of Ashdod, hardened his heart not to bring tribute. I broke his dominion over the people round about him and carried off, etc. The people of Philistia, Judah, Edom, and Moab, dwelling beside the sea, whose duty it was to bring tribute and presents to Assur, my Lord (the great Assyrian deity), were speaking treason."

Verse three of this same twentieth chapter of Issiah mentions that in this campaign the aid of Egypt and Ethiopia was sought. It reads: "And they shall be afraid and ashamed of Ethiopia, their expectation, and of Egypt, their glory."

Now what testimony has Sargon to offer.

with which to defend themselves."

"There stands to this day in the Temple of Vulcan a stone statue of Sethos (the Egyptian commander in the abovementioned conflict), with a mouse in his hand and an inscription to this effect: 'Look on me and learn to reverence the gods.'" (Herodotus, IL, 141.) Among the Egyptians the mouse was the symbol. the Egyptians the mouse was the symbol of invisible destruction.

Such is the valuable testimony of the buch is the valuable testimony of the truth of Scripture that is rising from the graves of Assyria. Other words of confirmation might be added to these, but they must be reserved for a tuture article. Elderdge B, Hatcher. Johns Hopkins University.

PATRIOT, STATESMAN, AND JURIST. By HENRY D. CAPERS, A. M.

This book should be in the hands of every American reader, because—

1. It is the truthful record of a noble life, made in graceful terms by an accomplished author.

2. It is the best and most exhaustive treatise on the banking system of the United States. Every legislator, banker, or merenant should have it as a text-book.

3. It is the only full and complete history of the financial policy of the Confederate States Treasury.

4. It discusses the problems of political economy involved in the tariff measures now before Congress and the people, by presenting the speeches of some of the ablest statesmen on this subject.
